

Sony Ericsson WTA Tour

The Sony Ericsson WTA Tour has become the preeminent tennis league for women, hosting more than 2,000 players from 90 nations, who are playing for more than $70.8 million in prize money. The Tour, which concludes with the season-ending Championships, is remarkably popular, drawing hundreds of millions of spectators worldwide. In 2006, USANA Health Sciences was selected as the official health supplement supplier to the Sony Ericsson WTA Tour, a partnership combining the world's most elite athletes in the field of women's professional tennis with USANA's unrivaled nutritional products.

“The Sony Ericsson WTA Tour conducted an extensive search to find a company that produced the highest quality vitamins and supplements to meet the needs of its professional athletes while also complying with the strict purity requirements established by the World Anti-Doping Agency...USANA proved to be the preeminent manufacturer when it came to assuring the purity of its products, and USANA's strict production methods provide our athletes the security that comes from knowing USANA products are free from banned substances.”
